Griffith, UniSA rank high in alternative MBA list

Two Australian business schools - Griffith at 27 and the University of South Australia at 78 - are included in the world top 100 in the biennial 2009-10 'Beyond grey pinstripes' alternative rankings of full-time MBA programs. The rankings, which measure how well schools prepare their students for the environmental, social and ethical complexities of modern-day business, are topped by Schulich School of Business at York University in Toronto. Seven of the top 10 are US schools. The other two non-US schools in the top 10 are RSM Erasmus from the Netherlands (7) and Spain's IE Business School (9). Go to beyondgreypinstripes.org
